All Welcome

Dr. Sara Andres is an associate professor, director of the Biomedical Discovery and Commercialization program at McMaster, a member of the Michael G. DeGroot Institute for Infectious Disease Research and is currently the Canadian representative for the ACA: The Structural Science Society. Her lab studies mechanisms of DNA repair and replication using a combination of structural biology and biochemistry. She also co-manages the McMaster Macromolecular x-ray crystallography facility, working collaboratively with other groups to meet their structural research needs.
